The Week in Oxford County

Small children playing with matches was believed the cause of a fire which caused $1,900 damage on Carleton Ave., Mexico, last week. The flames destroyed a henhouse, a two-car garage and a storeshed, in which was stored furniture valued at $1,000.

Oxford County officials have started an intensive search for the body of Gilles Gervis, of Gaspe, P. Q., a Brown Company employee, who drowned in Upper Richardson Lake last Dec. 21, while on his way home for the Christmas holidays. He was with three companions when he stepped on thin ice and crashed through. The current carried the body away and it was never recovered.

Bryant C Bean, a native of Woodstock, has been elected principal of South Paris High School, to succeed Ralph H Long. Mr Bean, son of Mr and Mrs Frank Bean of Woodstock, who is at present principal of Erskine Academy at South China, is a graduate of Gould Academy, class of 1938, and of the University of Maine. He has served as principal at Stockholm, Island Falls and Edgartown, Mass., high schools.

Archie A Stevens of Corinna has been appointed town manager of Norway to succeed Allen L Wilcox, who resigned recently. As Town Manager he will also discharge the duties of road commissioner, overseer of the poor, tax collector, and treasurer. Mr Stevens recently resigned as manager at Greenville and served the town of Charleston as town agent and selectman.

During the past two weeks there have been three bad land slides, blocking the road, about one and one-half miles from Gilead, on the Wild River road. Last Tuesday was the most serious one. At that time the road was closed two days, but a tractor was kept there and when another slide came on Sunday it was cleared much sooner.

Gerald Littlehale of Wilson's Mills was wounded in the abdomen Wednesday, when a revolver accidentally discharged. The shooting occured near the home of Clifford Littlehale of Magalloway when he lifted a bunch of magazines, with the revolver on top, from a table. Apparently the safety device was off. Littlehale was rushed by ambulance to the Coos County hospital at West Stewartstown, N. H., where a successful operation was performed. It is thought he will recover.

OBSERVANCE OF POPPY DAY SET FOR SATURDAY, MAY 26

Saturday, May 26, will be Poppy Day in Bethel and throughout the United States. Mrs Lesta Compas, President of Mundt-Allen Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, which will sponsor the observance of the day here, has announced.

On Poppy Day everyone will be asked to wear a memorial poppy in tribute to America's war dead, and to contribute to the welfare of disabled war veterans and needy children of veterans. Poppies will be distributed on the streets throughout the day by volunteer workers from the American Legion Auxiliary.

"With our country preparing to defend itself against new dangers, wearing of the poppy will have increased significance this year," Mrs Compass said. "The little red memorial flower reminds us of the sacrifices made for the freedom and security of America in the past, and gives us inspiration for service to our country in the present emergency.

"The poppies which the American Legion Auxiliary will distribute here have been made by disabled veterans of both World Wars at Togus, Maine. The work has been beneficial to them as well as giving them the opportunity to earn money for themselves and their families. Many thousands of disabled veterans have been given employment in the Auxiliary's poppy program in hospitals throughout the country, and the more poppies worn on Poppy Day, the more veterans we can give employment.

"Contributions made by those who wear the poppies form a principal source of support for the vast rehabilitation and child welfare work carried out by the Legion and Auxiliary, so by wearing a poppy everyone is aiding the living victims of war while they honor the war dead."

Bryant Pond, May 3—The Woodstock Tigers felled the Hebron Academy Reserves 14-2 in a contest that was called at the end of five and a half innings by agreement. The game was highlighted by Dick Mills in the fifth when he blasted a bases-loaded home run. Fred Farnum won his second game of the season, giving up only five hits and fanning nine. GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Monticello, N. Y., Bulletin-Sentinel: "Jefferson looked with apprehension on the laws of Virginia which supported the Anglican Church of England. He opposed the laws which provided for public taxation for the support of the established church. Jefferson provided his answer to this question by writing in 1776 a statute to change these laws. . . The bill finally was enacted January 16, 1786. Americans today owe a great deal to Thomas Jefferson for his brave and courageous fight for this principle which he thought was right and just—the principle we take for granted—the principle that in matters of religion every man shall have the freedom to worship his God as he desires without dictation from the government."

Somerset, Ky., Journal: "One of the most precious things about this country is every man's right to express his own personal opinion on any subject without fear of punishment or retribution. We must stand united in our opposition to anything that would deprive us of this privilege."

Olympia, Wn., Daily Olympian: "Mr Jefferson was a strong supporter of republican government. He championed the sovereignty of the people. He believed in freedom of thought and speech. He preached economy in government, and small public debt. He stood for a policy of peace, strict construction of the Constitution and sovereignty of the states, metallic money, as a standard; a judiciary beyond the control of the legislative and executive branches of the government, rotation in office, elemination of monopolies."

Morris, Minn., Sun: "Political and economic theories often sound practical and enticing until we reduce them to a level where people live and work."

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents Magazine

"LIKE THE SKIN of a new born babe" is as high a compliment as can be given to dewie soft, velvety texture, and happily baby's rose petal complexion is easy to care for. No complicated beauty ritual is required; just common sense and shining cleanliness.

Bath time should be fun for both baby and mother. Most little ones soon kick and gurgle with delight in the tub and are enchanting little water babies. But once a day—except in very hot weather—is the schedule laid down by medical authorities since more frequent bathing tends to dry the delicate skin. Don't forget to include baby's head in the daily soaping. Doctors say this is an excellent preventive of "cradle cap," that disturbing, scabby rash which pillow perspiration sometimes induces.

Gentle, but oh-so-thorough, drying with a soft terry towel is an essential finishup, both to prevent chill and to safeguard tender skin against chapping and chafing. Oil or powder give a nice protective finish to the folds of fat which make your baby such a cuddlesome armful. Some people like to apply oil over the whole body as baby emerges as slick as a little greased pig, but it is really necessary only to place the oil sparingly with finger tips in the creases of his chubby neck, leg and arm joints.

Or you may prefer talcum to oil as a bathing agent. Choose either one, but not both together as powder on top of oil causes caking and makes baby feel lumpy and uncomfortable instead of smooth and serene.

Of course, the infant's skin needs attention at other times besides the bath hour. Diaper rash is a hazard against which the careful mother is constantly on guard and one which is far easier to prevent than cure. Excess laundry is certainly preferable to a fractious infant with a worrisome skin irritation, so be sure to change your baby as often as necessary and spare him the discomfort of wet or soiled diapers.

Paper diapers or linings are a reasonable labor saving device especially when baby is traveling or visiting, though their too frequent use may lead to chafing. As for rubber panties—no! Daintily dry as they serve to keep outer clothing, they can be a menace to health and comfort. They keep moisture from escaping or evaporating and create a steamy dampness that would irritate far less delicate tissues than baby's.

Every mother worries about that bugaboo of babyhood, prickly heat, and here again the well known ounce of prevention will spare your child many unhappy hours. Use your judgment about baby's clothing. He has to be warm enough, of course, but he doesn't have to be wrapped up like a hot water bottle. His garments should be loose at all times and should be kept to a minimum during summer. A sleeveless shirt and diaper—or on really torrid days, only the latter—make a fine, becoming costume for infant or toddler and help him keep cool while he's getting his first healthy coat of sun tan.

"EASY DOES IT"

TO GET THE SOAP out of your hair or off your face after washing, rinse with a solution of a few drops of aromatic vinegar in clear water.

Those whose hands perspire should wash them with a solution of boracic acid and water. Use one part of the acid to 20 parts of water. Dust with talcum powder afterwards.

A good sachet for dresser drawers and linen closets can be made by tying together a half ounce of lavender flowers and a half teaspoon of powdered cloves in a small sack.

Keep your old toothbrushes and use them for cleaning combs. For ivory combs scrub the comb with the brush and alcohol. If you want to dry clean a comb, use cornmeal with the brush until clean.

It's easy to get scalp and hair clean especially if it's greasy, by wetting the hair first with tepid water, then rubbing in the juice of two or three lemons. Rinse off with hot water, then with tepid water.

If you like a faint aroma of violets on your hair brush, wash them in hot water into which you've placed a muslin bag with a small piece of orris root.

Shoestrings will wear longer if they're soaked in tepid water as soon as they're removed from the feet. Heels and toes on hose wear longer if they're mended just right-side with a piece of paraffin.

TO THOSE WHO TRAVEL THE APPALACHIAN TRAIL IN MAINE

These suggestions are made by the Maine Appalachian Trail Club with the view of making more enjoyable your travel of The Appalachian Trail in Maine. They are premised on the thought that this trip may be your initial venture over trails through this type of terrain. What is said here is only what you would soon learn on your trip. In order, however, that your first journeying in Maine may produce for you maximum pleasure and enjoyment, there is set forth briefly—so that you may have such knowledge in planning your own trip — the experience of travelers and a word of caution as to points which, if unappreciated, could mar the pleasure of your expedition.

The point of primary concern is embodied in the expression, "Go Light." On a camping trip, your pack under no circumstances should exceed thirty pounds. This is a maximum. Undoubtedly, you can carry a much heavier pack but your comfort and pleasure, in travey over a rough footway on a primitive wilderness trail, are decreased in the proportion that your load exceeds the suggested thirty pounds. If you stay at sporting camps, 10 pounds should be the maximum weight.

Before undertaking your trip, check your equipment most carefully. Consider every item from the angle of need versus weight. You will find, to your surprise, that many items commonly carried can be eliminated. You will realize what you can do without It is particularly essential to avoid carrying heavy canned foods.

The second major factor is physical preparedness. Do not undertake any extended hiking trip without a preliminary one-or-two day practice hike, carrying your loaded pack. Trails in the Maine woods are necessarily rough. Their traverse requires considerable exertion. It is a very common failing to underestimate the difficulties. Mileage means very little. Any extended trail or camping trip to produce maximum enjoyment -- requires training and forethought, as does athletic competition.

There are additional factors which can contribute to the pleasure of your journey.

Give particular heed to footwear. Shoes should be well broken in, three-eyed and at least a size larger than street shoes. Do not use soft-soled shoes or moccasins. Many women hikers fail to equip themselves with adequate shoes. to avoid injury to the feet, shoes must be thick-soled and wide. Wear one or two pair of wool hose over silk or lisle socks. If you are susceptible to blisters, avoid this discomfort by hardening your feet in advance by soaking them in a tannic acid solution. (Use one ounce of tannic acid to two quarts of water in a porcelain container, for a quarter of an hour on several occasions.)

If you travel in June or July, take along a mosquito and black fly preparation.

As against a possible mishap, there are three indispensables: a good compass, matches with fire-making material, and emergency food. On the journey, in case of doubt as to the route, stop. Do not go forward. Retrace your route deliberately, carefully and slowly, marking it in an unmistable manner, until you return to some clear indication of the trail. Inspection will then usually disclose the point of initial error. The cardinal mistake, often resulting in an unfortunate experience, is a headlong precipitous insistence on going forward when once the route seems dubious. Haste, such as in the desire to avoid darkness or to reach camp, only precipitates the difficulty. If you have followed the recommendations of the Guidebook on the event of solitary travel, which is strongly advised against, your failure to arrive at destination will be detected and you can be much more readily located. It is preferable, when in doubt, to overcome the urge to travel and to remain at the point of difficulty, since this prevents straying far from the route A night out close to the Trail is far preferable to the disability of being genuinely lost.

All travelers in the Maine woods should exercise the most extreme care to avoid danger from campfire or smoking. Necessity for such care is too fundamental to require any elaboration. A fire caused by a user of The Appalachian Trail would have a disastrous effect on the Trail project and could very easily result in its abandonment. Except in very wet seasons, the considerate tramper will scrupulously refrain from smoking while traveling.

If you lack information as to where adequate light-weight camping equipment can be obtained, you will find sources of supply for many items listed in the 48-page booklet, "Hiking, Camping, Mountaineering, and Trail Clearing Equipment." This booklet may be procured for 50c from the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club, 1916 Sunderland Place, N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

An absolute essential is that the traveler on The Appalachian Trail in Maine have "Guide to The Appalachian Trail in Maine," with its detailed description of the Trail and accompanying maps. Information in it should be used in planning the trip and the proper clearing the sections of Trail to be traversed should be removed from the volume as it is loose-leaf and carried on the journey. If there is insufficient time to order this publication from the Appalachian Trail Conference (1916 Sunderland Place N W Washington 6, D C.) it can be obtained at the same price ($3.25) from the various offices of the Maine Publicity Bureau, the Millinocket Chamber of Commerce and at Katahdin Stream Campground. The portion of this Guide relating to Katahdin with an extensive map of the Katahdin area issued separately (price $1.75, 128 pps. and is obtainable from the same sources.

Above all, do not travel alone.

If the other guy's horse is stolen or his house burns down, we take note but it is minor and soon forgotten. But some time ago, for a change, a big N. Y. city editor to be different or something, and instead of feeling compassion and then forgetting the whole thing, said, "it served the guy right." Up to now, I am in the dark, says Henry. Patience, I says.

I have in mind this one particular big city paper saying it saw nothing wrong in the Govt. being the Big Cheese in the TVA country where it ruthlessly took over and erased from the scene with the help of congress, the individual outfits that visited their perspiration and cash in handing there a kilowatt business.

And now that the [illegible] of Washington, appalling evidence was aired showing how the UN and Washington were arrogantly conniving to keep various kinds of news from the papers. It depends on whose ox is gored. Until the Govt. starts elbowing you personally the average editor down on Main Street does not get too excited or even beg to whine sorry dish is cooking for him but if it had news can happen to an editor, I reckon, easy as pie, some such and Govt. news could happen to a barber, a dentist, a housewife or who ain't without fear leave the barn door unlocked.

Yours with the low down,

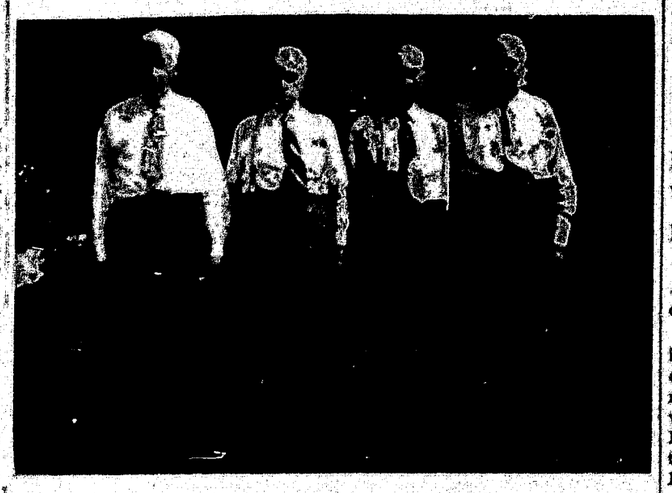
Nobody's Business

The prolonged spread of scarlet fever in this vicinity is the cause for much comment, alarm and disgust among citizens in general. It is believed by many that the present methods of control amount to little or nothing and that the disease may continue with us indefinitely.

A month ago, after the presence of scarlet fever here was finally acknowledged, the town schools and the theatre were closed one week. Gould Academy continued in session. Since that time schools, entertainments, parties and meetings have been held as usual. Although new cases of the disease occur daily, quarantine as it was formerly known apparently does not exist. Children with suspicious symptoms are sent home from school, but few stay at home. Moreover, we understand that parents take these children for out of town visits on these occasions.

As usual, too many parents do not care much about the welfare of their children, and nothing at all about that of the families of their neighbors. That is nothing new. Fortunately these parents are in the minority. The careless parents may not realize that the disease now prevalent can be fatal and that in its after effects it may and frequently does handicap its victims permanently.

While this scourge or disease is handled in this modern way, it is up to the people of Bethel—and those of the communities to which it spreads through our indifference—to use a bit of old fashioned common sense in an attempt to halt the epidemic. Even if no lives are lost, future comfort of the present young victims of the disease depends upon the vigilance of the parents and interested citizens.



THE LITTLEFIELD BROTHERS—Sidney, Horace, Clinton and Elijah, sons of John S. and Anna Russell Littlefield of East Stoneham.

Sidney Littlefield was born at East Stoneham Dec. 11, 1857. Becoming a spool maker as a young man, he followed this trade in mills at North Lovell and Bryant Pond. Later until his retirement about 15 years ago, he was a florist with a large greenhouse at North Abington, Mass. He is quite active and walks a half mile to the post office every day.

Horace E Littlefield was born Oct. 16, 1866, at East Stoneham. Until his parents' death he lived at home, being engaged in farming and mill work. Later for several years he was a salesman for the International Harvester Company, and in 1914 bought the livery stable business of Charles Hill at Bryant Pond. Selling there. Since 1917 he has lived in Bethel, where in March of that year he purchased the livery business of Harry King. For four years he carried mail on the Bethel-Hanover star route. In recent years, in retirement more or less, he has sold made-to-measure clothing.

John Clinton Littlefield was born in West Virginia July 15, 1869. He early learned the trade of spool maker, and later for many years, was a painter and paper hanger. He bought the Jim Estes place between Locke Mills and Bryant Pond many years ago, where he resides with his son and wife, Mr and Mrs Raynor Littlefield.

Elijah Littlefield, the youngest brother, was born at East Stoneham, June 29, 1881. As a young man for several years he had charge of a mill at North Paris, and for about 40 years has been a filer for the Paris Manufacturing Company.
